

I am honored to have been recommended for the Outstanding Academic Performance Award for the Global Health Program. Through this program, I have been able to learn more about healthcare practices and health research specifically in Taiwan through classes that incorporate real world examples and field trips throughout many different courses. However, global health encompasses more than a single geographical location, so I have also been able to learn more about the interconnectedness of healthcare systems, issues, and solutions from around the world. I look forward to the coming semesters at NTU, especially toward making progress on my research project and thesis.
